

WHY HIRE A LANDSCAPE DESIGNER?

The popular world of landscape and garden design has been experiencing a renaissance in recent years. This, says landscape design consultant, Gary Foran, is largely due to an increasing awareness among people of the health and spiritual benefits attainable upon closer involvement with nature and the wider environment, a relationship which leads to a sense of personal well being and fulfilment.

The landscape industry has responded to this recent trend by offering people a wider-than-ever choice of building materials, technologies and plants, making the creation of outdoor spaces so much more exhilarating. Gary, who specialises in contemporary garden design, says, "We have been encouraged to rethink and explore new ways of harmonising both traditional and modern elements of construction and planting to create green spaces that are inspired by and complement the natural landscape around us, without compromising on those standards of comfort, quality and style found, for example, in indoor environments. "Design consultancy is a multidisciplinary service providing professional advice, skills and resourcefulness in the areas of landscape and garden design, use of materials and plants, and construction supervision.

Engaging a landscape design consultant is a desirable route for many since it is their business to invest time in you, in your aspirations and needs, mediating between these and the practical aspects of what is functional, aesthetically pleasing and above all affordable, in any given situation.
